Welcome to the Indian Peaks Wilderness Alliance (IPWA) membership drive. We are a 501(c) non profit organization focusing on preserving and protecting the Indian Peaks and James Peak Wilderness Areas. We are a 100% volunteer organization with no paid staff positions. As a result, 100% of our fund raising goes to our programs and operations.

For just a $10 tax deductible donation, you can help us achieve our mission!

The wilderness areas of the Colorado Front Range – and in particular the Indian Peaks and James Peak Wilderness Areas – are in the top 5 most heavily visited wilderness areas in the United States. Being only 45 minutes west of Denver Colorado, the areas are easily accessible to the residents of the Front Range. Last year alone our wilderness patrol volunteers were in contact with more than 35,000 visitors just during the summer hiking season! Furthermore, with the Colorado population increasing by over 100,000 new residents a year, these areas have been and will continue to face an ever increasing risk of degradation due to high levels of visitation and utilization. This is where we help!

The IPWA offers a unique service to our community, our members, and our volunteers, as we are the only Colorado Front Range non-profit with a mission of focusing exclusively on preserving and protecting the magnificent Indian Peaks and James Peaks Wilderness Areas. We strongly believe in our core tenet that 'We do not inherit the Earth from our ancestors; we borrow it from our children.' As a result, our programs provide information and education on how to preserve and protect the Indian Peaks and James Peak Areas for future generations – leaving a legacy that others can cherish.

Our programs include the following:

- Wilderness Summer/Winter Patrols (trained IPWA summer and winter volunteers work as volunteers of the US Forest Service in hiking and patrolling the wilderness areas and providing educational information to visitors),
- Wilderness Ranger Internships (the IPWA provides stipends to local college students studying alpine and wilderness related issues during a ten-week summer long program),
- Wilderness Trail Projects (the IPWA - in partnering with organizations such as TEENS Inc., Wildlands Restoration Volunteers, Bryan Mountain Ski Patrol, Boy

- Scouts of America, etc. - performs trail maintenance and trail restoration work),
- Wilderness Scholarships (the IPWA provides Colorado graduate students with research grants who are studying alpine and wilderness related issues),
  - Wilderness Trail Head Hosts (our trail head hosts greet visitors at a variety of Indian Peaks and James Peak wilderness trail heads and provide maps, water, sunscreen, dog leashes, etc. to visitors while educating them on the importance of wilderness protection and preservation),
  - Wilderness Information Specialists (our wilderness information specialist volunteers help the US Forest Service manage the back country permitting process at the Boulder Ranger District station, and
  - Wilderness Interpretive Program (A new program we will be introducing in 2018, IPWA trained wilderness docents will perform information and educational hikes for groups visiting the wilderness, while also providing campground ranger talks on the importance of wilderness protection and preservation).

Why I donate to the IPWA: Paul W.

"I write books on personalities, each of which can be improved-upon or healed when immersed in the bosom of a lush, quiet forest. The planet's plight is in our hands. If we heal, the planet can heal - and it all starts with our forests. I donate to IPWA because it has a robust plan for wilderness protection AND it's fiscally lean. What more can we ask for? Thank you IPWA!"

Why I donate to the IPWA: Meredith D.

"I relocated to Colorado to be closer to the mountains and the great outdoors. Thanks to the work of organizations such as the IPWA, I can continue to enjoy all the natural resources this great state has to offer."

Thank you!
